General Information

The Joint Symposium on Composite Materials will be held at Changwon Exhibition Convention Center (CECO), Changwon city, Gyeongnam province, Korea on December 5-6, 2019. Since the inaugural Japan-Korea Joint Symposium on Composite Materials in 2000, eleven Joint Symposia have been successfully held alternatively in Korea and Japan. This year, China will join the symposium for the first time collocating the 12th Korea-Japan and the 1st Korea-China-Japan symposia. KSCM, CSCM and JSCM are pleased to announce the Joint Symposium by inviting professors, researchers, students and experts in composite materials from three countries. Participants from China and Japan are also welcome to attend the KSCM domestic fall conference, which will be held on December 4-5 (Morning) 2019 at CECO. A majority of the talks in the KSCM domestic conference are in Korean.

This Joint Symposium aims to facilitate scholarly idea exchanges of various state-of-the-art science and engineering topics in the field of composite materials and also provide a venue for networking and cultural exchange among the composites societies of three countries. This year program will be affluent with plenary talks, oral and poster presentations by the internationally leading scholars and experts in Composite Materials.
